About Food Literacy Center

Why food literacy is needed:

In Sacramento, 40% of kids suffer from childhood obesity, and 1 in 3 have type 2 diabetes. These diet-related diseases are preventable if we eat our vegetables. Yet only 4% of kids are eating the recommended amount of fruits and veggies.

> We work in low-income schools where students are at highest risk for diet-related diseases. Most of them eat three free meals a day at school.

How we help kids:

- Serve Title 1 schools in the Sacramento City Unified School District, focusing on South Sacramento
- Free, hands-on cooking and nutrition classes
- 14-week STEM-based curriculum
- Bring joy and trauma-informed food literacy teaching approach to promote resilience
- Inspire kids to eat their vegetables
- 97% of our kids fearlessly try a new fruit or vegetable each week

Veggie of the Year Options

Sponsoring the Veggie of the Year competition is a feel-good way to support our mission to inspire kids to eat their vegetables! Starting with the September 1 kick-off of Food Literacy Month, ten seasonal vegetables will be voted on by the public and our food literacy kids. We hold an event at school where a team of local restaurant chefs present the veggies to students to taste and vote for their favorite. Community members also attend and cheer on the students. The winning vegetable will be featured throughout the year.
